Scammer posing as cop dupes woman of RM30,000

KUANTAN: A bank officer at a financial institution here raised the red flag after realising a senior citizen was transferring thousands of ringgit to an unknown account on Monday. However, it was too late as the 73-year-old housewife had already lost RM30,000 to a scammer impersonating a police officer. The incident occurred on Sunday when the woman received a phone call from a man who introduced himself as a police officer and told the victim to provide her bank details for “investigations”. Pahang Commercial Crime Investigation Department chief Superintendent Mohd Wazir Mohd Yusof said the caller tricked the woman by claiming that the investigation was to clear her name from being involved in money laundering activities.
